For each Radar generation, a number of different antennas are available - so the permanent fixed field of view and max. range can be selected by the customer. This data sheet describes the UMRR-0A Radar with Type 29

Stationary optical wave fields with arbitrary longitudinal

In this work, in terms of suitable superpositions of equal-frequency Bessel beams, we develop a theoretical method to obtain localized stationary wave fields, in absorbing media, capable to assume

Momentum of a stationary particle wave Physics Forums

So for a stationary state the momentum should be completely determined (which is impossible since the corresponding plane-wave solution of the Schrödinger equation is not a proper state, because it's not square integrable) and thus the position is completely undetermined. Physicswise this means to get an approximately stationary state for a free particle the standard deviation of momentum
